

Community
4-H
Clubs

In Community 4-H Clubs, members age 8 - 18 typically have a wide variety of interests and choose projects to explore based on their own interests. While some project work may be done during club meetings, generally members work on their projects independently. During club meetings, members plan and participate in other learning activities, service projects and social outings. Club activities provide opportunities for members to develop and grow their leadership and communication skills.

SPIN
4-H
Clubs

In SPIN 4-H Clubs, members share a common interest and select a project to focus on, such as robotics, animals, shooting sports, or karate. During club meetings, a volunteer assists members as they participate in learning activities, develop new skills and share what they have learned with others. Members experience leadership opportunities as they assist other members in project work or plan service projects related to their shared interest.

Cloverbud
4-H
Clubs

4-H Cloverbud programs are for younger children age 5 to 7. During club meetings, youth work as a group on projects perfect for their age and are invited to explore other projects. Cloverbuds can be an independent group or they may meet at the same time as a 4-H community club.

4-H is a never - ending
Adventure of new places and new people.

4-H Club work is just a small part of the 4-H experience. In 4-H you can travel to places you've never been before, meet people from around the world, and help others in ways you've never thought possible.
